One of the most challenging aspects of many survey programs is managing the organizational structure of the employees or groups of employees. If this information is not accurate for any group, the survey results will not be accurate for that group.

insight Arboretum simplifies the whole process by moving it to the web with a permission-based system that allows managers to see just their own group(s) and make the changes necessary to ensure it accurately reflects their organization. All changes are tracked and approved through the permission structure we put in place to meet your requirements. At any given time, the org structure can be exported from Arboretum to accurately reflect the organization at that time, for instance, on the day your survey launches. insight Arboretum eliminates the headaches associated with org-structure management. Very easy to use&hellip; Very powerful.
